Judge Pomeroy Tuesday declared the case of ex-Councilman Harry York, charged with bribery, on trial for this morning. York is already under sentence following his conviction some months ago, and is battling for a new trial on appeal. York's former business associate, Jack White recently was convicted in his second trial on graft charges.

The long-expected announcement from Washington that Georgia's representation in the lower house of congress will be cut from 12 to 10, officially given out the White House Tuesday, turned the ttention of Georgia politicians sharply to the big task and the certain scramble for position which the next legislature will face.

Reapportionment of Georgia's representation, which goes into effect in 1932, is based on the new distribution of one member to each 288,-444 population, or 435 members for the country's 122,093,455. Georgia's population is 2,980,466 or a net gain of only 12,674 since the 1920 count. Excluding the border states of Oklahoma, which gains one member, Missouri and Kentucky, which lose three and two respectively, the south loses seven members and gains only five. GEORGIA'S LOSS OF SEATS IS CERTIFIED BY HOOVER. BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—President Hoover in promulgating the new apportionment of congress on a basis of the 1930 census today officially certified a net loss of two seats in the lower house for the state of Georgia

In consequence, the state during the next ten years will have only ten representatives as against a present delegation of 12.

gation of 12.

Loss of the two seats, which arises from the small gain recorded by the state in the new national enumeration, foreshadows a spirited fight in the next Georgia legislature when the problem of revamping the 12 existing congressional districts is taken up. As it will be necessary to work over present district lines and carve ten present district lines and carve ten new districts out of 12 it seems rea-sonable to believe that every one of the sitting congressmen from the state will be on haud to see that his interests are protected.

The natural aim of each, it seems safe to say, will be to preserve the present lines of his district as nearly intact as possible, eliminating the contingency of being thrown into the same jurisdiction with another congressman, who would be sure to oppose him in the primaries of 1932. when the new apportionment becomes Atlanta District Proposal.

One of the proposals certain to be presented to the legislature is that the city of Atlanta be made a separate congressional district by itself. Because of substantial population gains recorded by the city during the past 10 years, together with the larger areas now embraced in the corporate limits, Atlanta is entitled to be made one district. Even then the history."

Hagberg, who writes for the Stockholm Allehanda, said the Nobel committee based its valuation of Lewis solely on sales statistics instead of literary excellence. "Elmer Gantry" was called "a brutal book" by the Swedish expert. He said he thought there were many better writers in the United States than Lewis, and mentioned a few of his choice, including Irving Babbitt, Paul Elmer More and the late Stuart Sherman.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE ATLANTA, GEORGIA Mr. E. A. Thornwell, President, Atlanta Community Chest, Atlanta, Georgia.

Realizing that the need of the helpless and destitute this year is so great, the Junior League of Atlanta wants to make a special pledge of $1000.00 to the Chest as an evidence of the interest of the League in the splendid work which it feels that the Community Chest is doing for Atlanta.

The Junior League supports a ward at the Hendetta Egleston Hospital for Children and the contribution we are making to the Chest is in addition to the support which we have pledged the Hospital.

Hoping that this contribution will be of substantial aid in putting the Chest "over the top",

A warm-hearted community moved Tuesday to banish the gaunt form of hunger from the gates of its city and to throw a sheltering cloak of protection about unfortunate residents during a winter of hard times.

Close upon the heels of the offer of leading restaurateurs and others interested in the plight of many unemployed to serve warm, wholesome meals throughout the coming winter for a nominal charge of two cents, other civic leaders stepped forward to offer a place for distribution of this food; and one concern offered daily gifts of loaves of warm, fresh bread and toothsome cakes.

The two-cent meal plan, devised by a committee of the Atlanta Restaurant Association, was announced Monday and was contingent upon donation by some citizen or organization of a distribution depot.

Matching the magnanimity of this gesture, the Stone Baking Company, Walter T. Candler and Thomas K. Glenn promptly came to the fore Tuesday with offers of further aid. LONDON, Nov. 18.—(P)—In a tense atmosphere, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was called upon today to soothe the ruffled Indian delegates who have resented remarks made at the round table conference by Lord William Peel, former secretary for India. Lord Peel's criticism of Indian aspirations has been outspoken.

As one of the British delegates, of Indian aspirations has been outspoken.

As one of the British delegates, Lord Peel brought the conference down to the realities as they are seen from the conservative viewpoint.

Bluntly he told the Indian delegates the dominion status for which they are clamoring was not a promise, but a goal to be attained by progressive stages. He criticized the statement if Indian delegates yesterday and to day, and at one point he was interrupted by one of the princes of the cast.

"Bogus! Absolutely bogus!" the Indian delegate exclaimed as Lord Peel referred to the proposed introduction of full self-government into India.

"I will come presently to the question of whether it is bogus," Lord Peel replied with dignity, and continued his talk.

When he had finished, the Indian delegates were eager to reply, but MacDonald, with a suave command of the situation backed by a lifetime of experience as the chairman of all sorts of conferences. smoothed over the difficulty and ruled that representatives of each delegation must speak in turn. Thus, it was felt, Lord Peel's critice probably will have cooled off by the time their turn comes to answer him.

The Peel speech was the first note of discord in the Indian appeal for dominion status, for in the opinion of Indian liberals, it represented the attitude of reactionary British opinion.

Hewell and Swanson Will Stand Trial Early in December.

Two murder cases were assigned to Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy's division of Fulton superior court for the first week in December on a calendar published Tuesday by Lewis P. Jones, clerk to the solicitor general. The defendants are O. C. Hewell, city policeman, who is scheduled for trial December 2, and J. Clyde Swanson, who is to be tried December 4.

Hewell is charged with murder of Jake Minsk, Decatur street butcher; Swanson with the murder of Miss Ruth Bryant, whose body was found in the Chattahoochee river after she and Swanson had visited Roswell.

Other cases set for that week in Judge Pomeroy's court include trial of E. L. Griffin, J. R. Griffin and W. O. Heath on December 1 on a charge of assault with intent to murder Johnnie Zink; and of C. Demosey Darr and John Henry Smith, charged with assault with intent to rob Dr. Iverson C. Case. The case of Mrs. P. K. Outlines New York Program.

He briefly outlined the manner in which this four-phased program is being carried out in his own state. Or-ganizations such as the Boy Scouts, for instance, canvass from door to door in New York, asking each householder whether he will employ a job-less man for one day during the week for tasks such as general house-cleaning or other domestic chores for which there is a need. Committees are discussing the probability of making much needed loans to that class of unemployed which is assured of employment when the depression does lift, by virtue of their skill and competence; charitable organizations are co-ordinating their interests in an effort to take care of all extreme cases, with as little everlapping as possible, and construction is being pushed on all public work projects.

"Do you think that such a program will materially relieve unemployment?" he was asked.

Educational Body Official Raps Ruling on Past Due Appropriations to State Institutions.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 18.—Kyle T. Alfriend, secretary of the Georgia Education Association, in a statement today, took vigorous exception to the recent ruling of Attorney-General Napier that the back due appropriations due to various state institutions for the years 1928 and 1929 are not legal obligations of the state. "How men who believe in their state's promise to pay," the statement says, "how officials of the state can seek to shun the responsibilities and have the state fail to meet its obligations whenever the money is and have the state fail to meet its obligations whenever the money is available is beyond my comprehension to understand."

Alfriend calls attention to an act passed by the legislature in 1929 and approved by Governor Hardman, in which the governor and state treasurer are "authorized, empowered and directed to nay unpaid balances in full which the governor and state treasurer are "authorized, empowered and directed to pay unpaid balances in full of such appropriations for the years 1928 and 1929 out of any funds available in the treasury from revenue now or hereafter provided by law." The resolution also provides that "no limitations or elapsed appropriations shall exist against any unpaid balance of said appropriations."

The alleged statement by Westberry was said to have been made a few

BIBB BOARD BALKS ON STATE GAS TAX

MACON, Ga., Nov. 18.—(P)—Efforts of Comptroller General W. B. Harrison to collect from Georgia coun-

MACON, Ga., Nov. 18.—PLEF forts of Comptroller General W. B. Harrison to collect from Georgia counties the regular tax on gasoline may result in federal court litigation and ultimately an appeal to the United States supreme court, it was learned today when Bibb county commissioners voted to delay payment of $12.013 said to be due the state by this county.

County Attorney James C. Estes said that other counties in the state tormerly exempt from the payment of the state tax on gasoline, are protesting the new interpretation of the law by the supreme court of Georgia, and are preparing action to defeat it. Several of the protesting counties, it was said, probably will join in litization to bring the question to a head.

Herrick, of Chicago, Ill., national chairman of patriotic education and Americanization, arrive in Atlanta early this morning to spend several hours here as the guests of Mrs. Howard H. McCall, a former vice president general of the society, at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

These distinguished visitors have been attending the divisional conference of the organization at Wichita, Kan.; Des Moines, lowa, and the southern conference at Gulfport, Miss., where Mrs. McCall was also a distinguished guest. Mrs. Hobart and other national officers spent last Monday on Pine mountain, in Alabama, where they were the guests of the Kate Duncan Smith school, owned by the D. A. R. of Alabama. Mrs. Hobart presided yesterday at the dedication of two beautiful new buildings on the campus of the Tomassee D. A. R. school in South Carolina. One of these buildings is the gift of the Ohio D. A. R. and bears the name of Ohio-Hobart Hall, named in honor of the beloved president general, a native of Ohio.

Mrs. Hobart, Mrs. Magna and Mrs. Herrick are en route to Nashville, where the Tennessee D. A. R. conference will be held November 19-21. Mrs. McCall will entertain at an informal breakfast this morning at her home at the Georgian Terrace in honor of her guests, inviting to meet them the Georgia state D. A. R. of-

'THE STYLE CENTER OF THE SOUTH'

Quick COMFORT for fretful upset children

ALL children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely; good old Castoria. This pure vege table preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngster comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria.

Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house-always. Give it to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown!

my discussion of the case with my mind for me to have the same view, though I must admit that her rapid appearance on the scene and eager curiosity repelled me slightly.

"You had better look at this," I said, and handed her Protheroe's unfinished letter.

She took it and read it without any appearance of surprise.

"You had aiready deduced something of the kind, had you not?" I asked.

"Yes—ves, indeed," Miss Marple said. "May I ask you, Mr. Clement, what made you come here this evening? That is a point which puzzles me. You and Colouel Melchett—not at all what I should have expected."

I explained the telephone call and that I believed I had recognized Hawes' voice. Miss Marple nodded thoughtfully.

"Very interesting. Very providential—if I may use the term. Yes, it brought you here in the nick of time."

"In the nick of time for what?" I said bitterly.

"To save Mr. Hawes' life, of course."

"Don't you think," I said. "that it might be better if Hawes didn't recover? Better for him—better for everyone. We know the truth now, and—"

I stopped—for Miss Marple was nodding her head with such a peculiar vehemence that it made me lose the thread of what I was saying.

"Of course," she said. "Of course! That's what he wants you to think! That you know the truth—and that it's best for everyone as it is. Of yes, it all fits in—the letter, and the overdose, and poor Mr. Hawes' state of mind and his confession. It all fits in—but it's wrong. . . "That's why I am so glad Mr. Hawes is safe—in hospital—where no one can get at him. If he recovers, he'll tell you the truth."

"The truth?"

"Yes—that he never touched a hair of Colonel Protheroe's head."

"But the telephone call," I said. "The letter—the overdose. It's all so clear."

"That's what he wants you to think! Archer could easily have got the pistol from Mr. Redding's house for either of those two. And then, of course, there was Lettice—wanting freedom and money to do as she liked. I've known many cases where the most beautiful and ethereal girls have shown next to no moral scrupte—though, of course, gentlemen never wish to believe it of them."

I winced. "And then there was the tennis racquet," continued Miss Marple.

Sam Colvin Hurt as Jackets Open Work for Clash With 'Gators FOUR TEAMS STAND OUT IN CONFERENCE

The Inseparable, Insuperable Pair

Bobby Dodd's feat of outwitting a Vanderbilt line trained to rush him off his feet, crossing the field twice and completing quarterback who was injured in praca forward pass to Buddy Hackman for a touchdown was interestingly, dramatically described by a thoroughly competent eyewitness in an Atlanta paper.

A diagram with the story made the remarkable play even clearer.

But that diagram instantly conveyed the idea that if ever there was a two-man play executed in football, that was the most striking example.

It required a great halfback to sense what Dodd was trying to do, keep pace with him in crossing and recrossing the field and make the completion of the pass possible.

PERFECT UNDERSTANDING.

There was an understanding almost telepathic in character between Dodd and Hackman. And if Dodd was throwing out the delicate impulses of his own intentions, Hackman was the perfectly attuned receiving set who shuttled back and forth in complete synchronization.

IT HAPPENED BEFORE.

That subtle understanding between Dodd and Hackman first was evidenced to this reporter when on a cold, snowy day last Thanksgiving, Dodd and Hackman connived to tie Kentucky and avoid a 6-0 defeat.

. All through that miserable day with hard, fine snow spraying into their faces and clogging their eyelashes, a Tennessee team as stale and flat as Georgia must have been against Tulane, fought off a superior Kentucky eleven. Kentucky scored a touchdown and missed the extra point.

And the game went on into the wintry twilight, with Kentucky leading Tennessee impotent. Dodd kept kicking, kicking and waiting for the break that never came.

THE TWO-MAN TEAM.

Two minutes were left to play. Tennessee had the ball just beyond midfield. Dodd tried to pass to McEver, but Mc-Ever missed the ball. He tried another pass to an end; the end slipped in the snow and missed it.

On third down, having lost five yards on that other pass, Dodd took the ball from the center and clutching it to his stomach, turned tail and ran back 10 yards. He turned to pass and Hackman was covered. He ducked away from rushing Kentucky linemen and ran to his right. Hackman was circling over the snow like a country dog hunting for rabbit scents; a Kentucky halfback trailed him.

Dodd threw that football for the goal line toward the righthand corner. Hackman feinted to the left, then sped for the goal line. With that strange understanding that great outfielders have, he ran directly for the point the ball would fall. He took it out of the air with the Kentucky back frantically clutching for it. The Kentuckian tackled Hackman on the one-yard line. Tennessee bucked it over to tie on the next play. Then a place kick for extra point failed to win the game.

THEY MUST BE COUPLED.

That play and the Nashville play and perhaps a dozen other plays throughout the season stamp Buddy Hackman as a great pressure player. He is the complement to Dodd. Without Hackman, Dodd might have looked like a quarterback who guessed wrong once and was thrown for a 10-yard loss.

Nothing that is said of Hackman can take away anything from the genius of Dodd. The lanky mountaineer is one of the best quarterbacks the south ever saw. Bo McMillin was another great one. But with such an uncanny co-worker as Buddy Hackman, Dodd becomes Dorais had his Rockne, Friedman his Oosterbaan, McMillin his Snoddy and so on. Dodd and Hackman should be inseparably coupled.

CALL OUT THE RESERVES.

Northwestern University has received seven wildcats as mascots this year. They should paint numbers on their backs and use them in the game against Notre Dame next Saturday.

Wow, what a tiger Maxie was against Jack Sharkey last summer!!

ALABAMA ALL SET.

Mark Kelly, the red-haired sage of the Pacific Coast pressmen, writes in positive terms that Washington State and Alabama will meet New Year's Day in the Rose Bowl. He adds that a defeat Thanksgiving Day by Georgia probably would not change the status. "Red" Kelly very rarely is wrong on matters pertaining to Rose Bowl games.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

It was feared at first that he might have suffered a badly ruptured muscle when he was hurt blocking after a kick in the practice of Tuesday. He was taken to a hospital suffering from intense pain in the solar plexus region where a knee struck him.

The Tuesday practice was the first since the Pennsylvania game at Philadelphia last Saturday. It was marked by the return of Captain Earl Dunlap who was hurt in the second game on the Tech schedule.

when Colvin was hurt coaches feared that it was a return of the old injury jinx that has pursued the Teh backfield this season. STRENGTH BOLSTERED.

Return of Captain Dunlap bolstered the backfield strength. The Jacket captain appeared in fine fettle. His knee, which was hurt in the Carnegie Tech game, was apparently completely healed.

Doug Graydon, who was left at home last week when the Jack-cts went to Philadelphia, was also well.

Tech scrubs are busy with Florida plays and they will be thrown at the varsity this week. The Jackets hope to come back and close the season with great showings against Florida and Georgia.

MacFarlane, the tall, slender Scotch professional who once gave Bob Jones one of the most surprising lickings of his golfing career, thinks the chunky master of the links will be back in action within three or four years. "Bobby will be back," he said today discussing the retirement of the Atlanta wizard. "He loves competitive golf too well to stay on the sidelines. With Johnny Farrell, Willie shares the honor of once having beaten out Jones for the national open crown in one of the two most sensational playoffs in the history of the competition.

It was at Worcester, Mass., in the burning heat of late summer, that the tall Scot tied with Jones at 291 strokes for top honors in the 1925 open championship. They were tied with a pair of 75's at the close of the regulation 18-hole playoff, then in effect. They set out to decide the effect. They set out to decide the title in another 18 holes and Bob finished the first nine with a 4-stroke advantage, taking a 35 to Willie's 39. GREAT GOLF.

TULANE HOLDS PRESENT EDGE OVER ALABAMA

Bulldogs, Devils Close Up; Seven Others Trail in Group.

By Ed Danforth.

On a basis of performance to date, it appears that there are just about four real good football teams in the Southern conference. These are Tulane, Alabama, Georgia and Duke.

And of the four good teams, Tulane holds a slight edge over Alabama and Georgia rates ahead of Duke. This ranking, of course, is pure opinion which at current market rates this morning is worth 7 cents a ton.

Below these, in a group that morning is worth 7 cents a ton.

Below these, in a group that might be labeled "Not So Hot," are Tennessee, Vanderbilt, Florida, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, North Carolina, Maryland. Try to rank these seven teams in order of accomplishment this season and see how far wrong you can get with a few strokes of the pencil. Perhaps Tennessee is the best of the lot; 'that is neatly splitting a hair and leaves one open to vigorous challenge.

The other 12 in the conference are a bit outclassed it appears. That statement also makes the declarer liable to challenge.

GEORGIA HELPS WAVE.

Tplane is rated first in the list because the Green Wave, in defeating Georgia by four touchdowns, stopped a better team than Alabama has met yet. Tulane certainly should be allowed to sit on top of the ladder during the lull that precedes Thanksgiving Day.

If and after Alabama beats Georgia, those who insist on rank-ing the teams regardless of tech-nical ties in percentage would be forced to credit Alabama with having done more.

The football world simply is that way; it makes up its mind in advance which teams are strong and which teams are weak. Then when the season is over and balances are struck, the conqueror of a large num-ber of teams classed before the sea-son as strong, will receive more con-sideration than the team that beat a relatively small number of strong teams.

LITTLE ATTENTION. The press of the nation paid little attention to Tulane until they stopped Georgia. And then the east merely said Georgia was worn out from a hard schedule, too bad for the Bull-hard schedule, too bad for the Bulldogs, etc., etc.

The whole deal is just tough on the Tulane players. They have a great team. It took a great team to come out of the Northwestern game alive and beat the Texas Aggies and Georgia Tech and then hold together through a series of easy games without softening up and beat even the shell of the team that had beaten Yale and New York University.

Tulane was great the day they beat Tech. The Tulane line probably is the only forward wall in the south that conceivably could stand up with Alabama's for a while. That Green line made the way ridiculously easy for the sophomore backs to run, What a football player is "Preacher" Roberts!

And the Green Wave played a great game to beat Georgia by four touchdowns. The score might have been more, competent observers say, had many substitutions not been made by Coach Bierman. Atlanta writers in some instances leaned over backward to "give Tulane credit." They said extravagant things they could not have greant. The score is credit enough.

Which would indicate that Frank Thomas will inherit quite a football team when he takes over the Crimson regiment next fall.

FOUR TEAMS.

What most people do not understand about football substitutions is

What most people do not under-stand about football substitutions is that to have an efficient second team one must actually have four football cams.

Obviously, if the second team starts and requires substitutions, it must have them from its own squad. And first-string substitutions must be from the first squad. This explains the great horde of players carried by the larger eastern teams. It requires four football teams if two teams are to be used alternately.

Alabama is the only team in the south which can approach that condition.

Georgia started a second team against Tulane which played better football than the first team. Had it been possible to substitute that team with capable men they might have held.

Newspapers of New Orleans are rather insistently demanding that Alabama meet Tulane in a post-season game to decide the cham-pionship in the event Alabama defeats Georgia.

It is no province of newspapers to demand anything of college football teams so far as post-season games are concerned.

IT'S POSSIBLE.

It is quite possible for the Tulane team to begin work now to obtain a worthy schedule and in two or three years be able to play one which will speak for itself as does Alabama's. Alabama's schedule stands on its own least legs.

Tulane will share, in the conference title should Alabama win.

The Green Wave is one of the three or four really good football teams in the south. Insistence on a post-season game is hardly the thing. Alabama's schedule has been filled with more stubborn tests but there will be ample room for both to share the title.

While Alabama, Tulane and Georgia are involved in the championship rumpus there are those who very definitely are not.

the Southern conference in spite of the technical tie in percentage the great Tulane team has achieved.

It is tough, lads, but the only way to get anywhere in football is to take a few chances when making out the schedule in the winter time.

Alabama took 'em: Georgia took 'em and as a result those two teams have kept southern football on the national stage whereas Tulane for all her great team has been overlooked.

The press boys and not a few coaches around the south already, have laid the ground for awarding the championship to Alabama in print at least if the Crimson Tide can beat Georgia. The eastern and midwestern

In addition, the Tigers had a dismal season behind them. The logic of the situation clearly pointed to an overwhelming Yale victory. Such a break as that field goal would have taken the heart out of an ordinary team, but Princeton, not faltering for an instant, played all the harder. In the second period the Princeton attack clicked, and the Tigers scored a well-earned touchdown.

At the opening of the second half Yale put in an entire new team. And in the third quarter Yale really in my opinion played its best football, scoring from the 35-yard line on a beautiful left-handed pass.

At the start of the fourth quarter them to doff the caps. If the sop

At the start of the fourth quarter the Yale regulars re-entered the game and Booth soon threw a low forward pass that grounded in the end zone. It was Princeton's ball on its own 20-yard line. The score was 7-10 against us. The Yale first team with 30 minutes rest had re-entered the game, and there were exactly six minutes left to play. It was a dark outlook to face for boys who had already given more than I thought it was humanly possible for them to give.

The Princeton players were not manly possible for them to give.

The Princeton players were not daunted nor did they falter for an instant, but started a last final attack that carried the ball 70 yards without a stop and ended on Yale's 2-yard line with less than one minute to play.

It failed by inchest o gain the goal but it showed the mettle of the Princeton team for determination, drive and gameness. I doubt if this drive against a powerful foe has been equalled in the annals of football. Certainly not in a Yale-Princeton game.

But I cannot refrain from mentioning two boys who have written their names high in Princeton's football history, Captain Mestres and Trix Bennett. As the center material was much below par this fall, it became necessary to shift Mestres from guard, where he had played for two years, to center. He had never passed the ball before, and yet he took on this additional burden and soon developed into a first-class center. All during the trying fall he showed leadership that was of the highest order. He was an inspiring captain—one of the finest inspiring captain—one of the finest with whom I have ever worked. He outdid himself against Yale.

Are You Satisfied With your present position?

Do you feel that it offers you the opportunity for advancement you want? In other words, where will you be in ten, fifteen or twenty years if you hang onto your present job, and granting that you do hold on, how will your wife and children fare?

If you are between the ages of thirty and forty, married, a father, and if you are ambitious and willing to work, we can help you build yourself a fine business of your own without any capital to start with, which will pay you liberal returns in your earning years and assure you a substantial income in your old age after you have retired.

Does it sound interesting? If so, call by our offices, or phone for an appointment.

Trumbull Pays Fine Tribute to Bobby as Golfer and Sportsman

Making Movie Not Necessarily Contrary to the Amateur Rule.

By Walter Trumbull.

Sepright, 1930, for The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The rinest offer in the game has retired from purnament competition.
The fact that he has accepted a newspaper of the purpose of the property of the contract of the contra contract to make educational golfing movies for a film company has no real hearing on the case, because Bob lones, previous to signing that agree-ment, had definitely made up his mind to retire from tournament play. He has selected the law as his life work, and that takes as much intensive effort as competitive golf. A man can't be a champion at both.

At Worcester, in 1925, Bob Jones

THE DIFFERENCE.

That is a different thing from its eing contrary to the amateur rule. Almost from the beginning of golf, both amateurs and professionals have writ-ten on the subject of golf and sold such articles. No question has been raised as to this practice. A lawyer might argue that there is little difference in teaching golf in the newspapers and teaching it on the screen, but Jones is not only a lawyer, but a sportsman. He feels that there is a difference, and calls the thing as he

No ruling by the United States Golf Association will be made or needed, because the question would arise only in ease the 'holder of all major golf titles in the United States and Great Britain should send in his entry for an amateur tournament. This he will not do. He thought the matter over carefully and then made a design.

an anather tournate the matter over carefully and then made a decision which is final.

Bob Jones says he never will become a professional. By that he evidently means that he never will adopt golf as a business, give lessons, sell-clubs, play for money prizes. Such sidelines as do not interfere with his regular profession of law he will feel free to follow. He may, for example, accept one of the several offers he has received to talk golf over the radio.

FREE AT LAST.

And, most of all, Jones will now be free to play the game he loves for fun and recreation. In these days winning championships is no fun. The competition is too great. An amateur champion must train as rigorously as a pro-

THE RETIREMENT OF BOBBY JONES.

SO MANY factors are involved in the competitive retirement of Bobby Jones from golf that it is difficult to separate the interlocking strands

There is little question but that he had definitely made up his mind after Merion and the big clean-up to drop out of championship golf for 1931, and possibly for all time.

As much as he liked the thrill of competition, he felt that could no longer afford to give up the time to get ready for a championship test against those who were ready to go the route. The pressure had grown too heavy for any one who had another profession to follow for a living. When Warner Brothers handed him the proposition of making a series of instructive golf reels there were three main ideas that predominated.

1.—The financial side that was entirely too important to be

2.—The fact that he could see no wide gap between writing instructive articles, accepted as the gospel of the correct swing, and making a series of instructive talking pictures, where he merely brought the written word to life.

3.—The feeling that it would be pleasant work and some-thing he would like to do for the great army of golfers struggling to improve their play.

Naturally, the first consideration was the most important. Yet I don't

At Worcester, in 1925, Bob Jones called a penalty stroke on himself. None of the many who were watching saw the ball move, but he saw it and that was enough for him. That stroke cost him the open championstip, which Willie MacFarlane won.

Fine sportsman that he has always been, Jones has once more called a penalty stroke on himself. He has been the first to announce that the considers the thing he is about to do as "contrary to the spirit of amateurism."

thing he would like to do for the great army to improve their play.

Naturally, the first consideration was the modelieve Bobby Jones would have considered the had first decided to retire. I say this, knowing years ago he refused to even consider offers with the debate. Having concluded his the figured the situation was entirely different.

A HARD THING TO DO—A believe Bobby Jones would have considered the financial side unless he had first decided to retire. I say this, knowing that only two or three years ago he refused to even consider offers that would have netted him over $100,000 a year. His only answer was "not interested" and that ended the debate. Having concluded his time at competitive play,

A HARD THING TO DO-AND YET-

T IS no easy matter to quit being the best in the world at anything-I voluntarily. There are so few who are the best-at anything. Yet Bobby Jones never took the matter of being the world's best golfer on the serious side. To him it was unimportant compared to a profession he could follow through life.

He knew that he could not be a successful lawyer champion golfer at the same time—not for long, at least. The pressure of championship play has affected others the same way. Some years ago Robert Maxwell, of Maxwelton's Braes, won the British amateur championship and retired from all tournament play. He saw no fun in being followed by a stampeding crowd of 15,000 enthusiasts through a round of golf.
Some time ago Miss Cecil Leitch, British women's champion, did the

In more recent years Miss Joyce Wethered, the greatest woman golfer of all time, rated by many with the finest all-round swing in golf, followed the same course. She gave up all competitive play at the height of her fame.

Bobby Jones has been keen for the thrill of championship golf, but he has always hated the accompanying and necessary fanfare of crowds, parades and such, of being public property, on and off the course.

Of late years he has known that by winning open championships he has cost many professionals from $20,000 to $30,000 a year. And at 36 holes there has been no real competition in amateur championships for the last four years. As Tommy Armour remarked before Merion—"It's 4 to 1 on Jones against the field."

The big tournaments will miss him and it will be a long time before another such combination of skill, poise, grace and personal magnetism catches the fancy of hurrying crowds. But the old game will move along for there are too many stars left general interest in competitive play. And the scramble now, both in the open and the amateur, will be more of an open fight.

"THRU TO BROAD"

That is a burden which even the sturdy shoulders of Bob Jones will be glad to lay down. He can hit a putt without feeling the strained and deathly silence of a pocked horde of fans, as they watch it roll.

From a selfish standpoint, most of us will grudge Jones his happy leisure. National tournaments no longer will be the field against one player. A lot of color will be missing from the picture, But while we miss Bob Jones, the champion, we still will have Bob Jones, the man.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION No. 27

The High Priest paused. He cast a half-defiant, half-frightened look at the cloud obscuring the face of the sun. Slowly he rose. Extending his arms upward toward the hidden god of day he remained silent in an attitude of rapt attention for fully five minutes. Suddenly he addressed his followers. "Begone!" he cried. "The Flaming God has spoken. He is not angered. He but wishes to speak to me alone." Obediently the lesser priests turned and melted into the jungle, leaving Cadj alone with his helpless enemy.

A crafty smile lighted Cadi's cruel face as his com-panions disappeared. Again he turned to the ape-man. Yet an inherent fear of his delty restrained his hand until the light of the sun-god should shine forth upon him once more. Six times he raised his knife for the fatal blow. Each time his super-stition prevented the keen blade from descending. Now, at last, he could see the cloud was nearing the edge of the sun. He stood, ready for the moment when the sunlight should flood again for the last time the living Tarzan.

As the cloud slowly swept away, a look of demoniacal hatred shone in Cadj's close-set, wicked eyes. Another instant, and the Flaming God would set the seal of his approval upon the sacrifice. Cadj trembled in malevolent anticipation. He raised the knife higher, his muscles tensed for the downward knire higher, his muscles tensed for the downward plunge. And then the jungle silence was broken by a woman's voice, raised almost to a scream, "Cadj!" came the single word, but with all the suddenness and shock of lightning from a summer sky.

The High Priest turned quickly at the interruption to see at the clearing's edge the figure of LA, the High Priestess. Behind her stood a score of the lesser priests. "What means this, Cadj?" demanded LA. Sullenly the High Priest spoke: "The Flaming God demanded the life of this unbeliever." "Speaker of lies!" retorted LA, "The Flaming God talks with men through the lips of his High Priestess, only." She came quite close to Cadj now. Wrath lay like a thundercloud on her lovely face and a note of imperious scorn rang in her voice. and a note of imperious scorn rang in her voice.

BRITON SAYS AMERICA

MUST FIGHT, HAVE FAITH

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(P)—J. H. homas, secretary of the dominions, oday, in an address before the Amerian Chamber of Commerce, said:

"America us up against it, just as we have been. You in America must have faith in your institutions and you have a right to be proud of them, for you have made no small contribution to world progress. They should be your guiding star. You should say: 'Yes, we are having a bad time of it, but just as clay goes through the fire and comes out purified, so shall we.'"

Forty-two closed or suspended business yesterday after the American Exchange Trust Company, Little Rock, one of the largest and oldest banks in the state, stopped payments to depositors for a five-day period.

Of those which have closed, 35 are in the so-called A. B. Banks group, including the American Exchange here. Most of the independent banks were in the same territories as the group institutions.

Reopening of many of the suspend-
